NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Reports of the Effect of the Tariff Bill Greatly Exaggerated.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12 A special from Washington says the Republican tariff managers regard the flurry over the possible trouble in the money market through the withdrawal from circulation of a large amount of money to pay duties if the tariff bill goes into effect October 1st, as greatly exaggerated. Senator Allison says the Senate conferees have an intelligent understanding of the existing financial conditions and they have no intention of taking any action that might result disastrously. The date for removing goods from bond has not yet been definitely determined upon.

THE PUREST AND BEST

Articles known to medical science are used in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla. Every ingredient is carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. The medicine is prepared under the supervision of thoroughly competent pharmacists, and every step in the process of manufacture is carefully watched with a view to securing in Hood's Sarsaparilla the best possible result.

THE BEST ADVERTISING.

The most efficient advertising in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that which comes from the medicine itself. Those in whom it has cured by it, speak to friends suffering similarly, who in turn derive benefit and urge others to try this successful medicine. Thus the circle of its popularity is rapidly widening from this cause alone, and more and more are becoming enthusiastic in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla as it actually demonstrates its absolute merit. All that is asked for Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it be given a fair trial. If you need a good blood purifier, or building up medicine, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

BOYS NOW GET READY

To blow for Hood's Sarsaparilla! On Saturday, Sept. 20, at 2 P. M., the grand chorus will begin! At that time the agent of Hood's Sarsaparilla will distribute to the boys of this place, near the postoffice, new Patent Duplex Chime Whistles, generously sent out as free gifts by the proprietors of this medicine. The same event will take place in the cities and towns all over the country, and it is safe to say it will be a happy day for Young America when Hood's Sarsaparilla Let every boy be on hand.

Miss Alice M. Farrington gave a very pleasant party to a large number of her friends at her home on Chamberlain street last evening Refreshments and some delightful vocal and instrumental music which Miss Farrington provided for the entertainment of her guests, helped to while away a most enjoyable evening.

Rapid transit is the order of the day, or rather night between the two ends of the street railway nowadays. The other evening the last car to South Brewer was so late in leaving the upper terminus that when they arrived at their destination there remained but eight minutes before power would be turned off and in, seven and one-half minutes they reached the bridge.

The appraisers have been hard at work for some time on the pulp mill damages and yesterday afternoon their work was completed. The building loss was appraised by Mr. Willard Cutter and Major J. M. Davis, of this city, who placed it at $7,119 18. Messrs. E. S. Winchester, of Boston, and W. S. Whitman, of this city, were at work on the loss to the machinery and this work was delayed by Mr. Whitman's illness, but it was finally finished yesterday and damages placed at $5,127.21, making the total loss $12,250.39. The whole insurance at the time of the fire amounted to $80,000, on a plant valued at $127,378.73.

ALMOST AN ACCIDENT. What came near being an accident occurred on Main street yesterday afternoon and it was very fortunate indeed that the motor man on the car concerned had such control over his brakes As a car was passing rapidly down the street, when near Church street a man driving a span of horses attached to a dump cart attempted to cross the track in front of the approaching car. Had everything gone smoothly he would have crossed safely, but he did not consider that his horses were afraid of the cars and when they found themselves on the track they refused to go forward until the car was nearly upon them, when they started ahead a few feet, but not enough to entirely clear the rear wheels of the cart, which the car struck with a thump One of the horses fell to the ground while struggling, but was soon up again People should be careful in driving across the tracks when a car is approaching, as they will sometimes do so in such close proximity to the car and so suddenly that the car cannot be stopped without a collision

FACT AND FANCY.

It is a fact that in these days of sharp competition, imitations for outnumber, and in their earnestness far outshine the genuine. People often fancy they are getting diamonds for this life when really they are getting served with "paste" goods. 'Tis best always to seek the true and good, avoiding all sham. This applies to ointment, medicine, and one gets the best and most economical when they purchase Brunell's Soap.

QUESTION OF TAXATION.

Report of the Commission.

The Tax Commission consisting of Hon. J. L. Cutler, Hon. O. G. Hall and Gen. L. J. Anderson, which has been making a study of the question of taxation, has prepared its report to be submitted to the Legislature and the following is a synopsis of the document.

THE NEW DIRECT SOURCES OF STATE REVENUE

under the proposed law, says the report, are: "The taxation of collateral inheritances; increase in railroad taxes by removing the three and a quarter per cent. limit; the taxation of sleeping car companies; the taxation of telephone instruments leased or royalty paying; the taxation of insurance and guaranty companies on gross instead of net premiums; taxation of foreign and unlicensed insurance companies; taxation of accumulations of savings banks; taxation of trust and loan associations; taxation of corporate franchises; tax on enrollments and organization of corporations, and taxes on private and special acts of Legislature.

"The sum which may be reasonably expected from these sources, under a system administered by an efficient board of state assessors, in addition to the amount to be derived from present sources will, we believe, be quite large But it is from the increase of taxable property which will be brought to light by the system proposed that we most confidently expect relief will be found for the general taxpayer, in the new and imperative provisions which are intended to furnish the property of the dishonest, defeat the cunning of the evader, lessen the burdens of the upright citizen and stimulate the fidelity of tax officers. The average rate of taxation throughout the state was last year one and seventy-one hundredths per cent on a valuation which in many towns was much below a just value We believe that, under the system proposed the annual levy need not exceed an average of one per cent"

THE TAX ASSESSOR.

"Whatever system of taxation may be adopted, the responsibility for its efficient and just operation must rest largely upon the assessors. They are to fix the values and upon their activity and faithfulness in a good degree depends the bringing to light of much property for taxation that would otherwise escape The assessor, above all other town officials, should possess the attributes of intelligence, sound judgment and courage. He should be a man who can not be bribed or cajoled from the strict line of his duty to assess all property equally and according to the just value thereof, as required by the imperative mandate of the constitution. There is no more responsible officer under our town system of government, the whole fabric of which may be said to rest upon and its fundamentals to operate through and by its system of revenues. Recognizing the vital importance of sound and safe provisions for securing revenue, the national government protects the; raising and collection of them with the safeguards of its severest penal laws and the evasion of a tax duty imposed by the government incurs the penalty of heavy forfeitures, fines and imprisonment. The revenue laws of the United States exact the most scrupulous observance of their provisions, not only as to the individual who would evade payment of his dues, but as to the officer whose duty it is to enforce the laws. The state laws should be equally peremptory in holding revenue officers to strict fidelity in their enforcement. Our taxing assessors are unquestionably as able and efficient as any and the fault is in the looseness of the tax laws. Yet it has long been the custom for assessors to ignore the exploit requirement of the constitution of the state above quoted. Property is assessed at much less than its just value in most towns. It is very common for assessors to value real estate at three-fourths, two-thirds and even one-half of its true value. In the returns of the assessors of all the towns of the state for the use of the state valuation commissioners it appears that the assessors of 132 towns based their taxes on less than a just value of the property assessed.

"Thirteen based them on four-fifths value, thirty-five on three fourths value; fifty-three on two-thirds value, and seven on one-half, while in two towns the assessors considered their duty done when they assessed upon one-third of the cash value of the property taxed It has been our purpose to make the assessor the important and responsible officer that he should be under our system and yet to make him the executor and servant of the law and not its superior The proposed law, therefore, leaves but little discretion in his hands. It points the way and commands him to follow under severe penalties for neglect or misfeasance. It holds him rigidly to a just valuation, with no discretion to construe that to mean a half value, and it is equally explicit in forbidding any intentional under-valuation or over valuation in any case or for any purpose whatever"

The proposed law fixes a

UNIFORM POLL TAX

of $2 00 between the ages of 21 and 70; imposes a tax of $1 00 on male and $3.00 on female dogs, to be applied in payment of damages caused by dogs to sheep, takes from selectmen the power to act as assessors in towns of more than 3000 inhabitants and grapples with the mortgage double tax subject by making the mortgaged estate taxable to mortgagor and mortgagee according to the value of their several interests in it, and relieves the mortgage debt from taxation altogether. The report says on

TAXATION OF MORTGAGES

"We have given considerable study to the vexed subject of taxation of mortgages. To tax or not to tax them is a many-sided question and most difficult of satisfactory solution. In Massachusetts and Maryland the legislatures have undertaken to deal with the subject of mortgage taxation and in the latter state mortgages are not taxed. In Massachusetts the mortgagee is taxed as joint owner with the mortgagor in the land mortgaged, to the extent of his interest. This method was adopted under a statute enacted in 1865 and has proved reasonably satisfactory in practice. The mortgage is taxed to him as real estate to the amount of the debt due him upon it, and the mortgagor is, to that extent, relieved from tax, as he is taxed only for so much of the value of the property mortgaged as is in excess of the debt, thus making but one tax, in effect, upon the whole transaction, the note being free of tax. Thus the lender is taxed for the money loaned in the form of a tax on his interest in the mortgaged property and the borrower is relieved to that extent. It is easy to see how, under this system, property escapes taxation, in theory at least, for if the lender retained his money and the borrower his land both would be subject to full taxation. But would the money be found for taxation? It is also apparent that the lender's facilities for shifting the burden of the tax he is liable for to the shoulders of the debtor by extra charges will remain. On the whole, however, we conclude that the weight of the argument is in favor of some such method as Massachusetts has shown to be considered with our own, and we have incorporated into our proposed law provisions of a like character. We are unable to devise any method that promises better results."

The report deals at length with the listing system in vogue in most of the states and collates much statistical data to prove its efficiency. The proposed law provides for the listing of property on oath for assessment.

A STATE BOARD OF ASSESSORS.

One of the most radical changes proposed in the accompanying bill is the appointment of a permanent board of three assessors. It is made their duty and will be almost all their time and labor to assess all State taxes and look after the corporation taxes of the State, and to keep the assessment of property all over the State perfectly equalized touching the functions of the

STATE ASSESSORS

the commissioners say

"The want of a central supervising head to our tax system we would supply by having a state board of assessors whose duties shall include among others, the general oversight of the state revenues, the assessment of such corporations as pay taxes directly to the state; the formulating and preparation of blank lists for returns of taxpayers to the local assessors, the inventories of assessors, blank books for annual return of aggregates by local to state assessors, the apportionment of state taxes voted by the legislature and the enforcement of taxes, delinquent, upon wild lands and in unincorporated places. Not less important function of the state assessors in the plan we recommend, is that of state board of equalization It is made their duty to equalize the valuation of the state biennially in order that the tax voted by each legislature may be assessed on a new valuation as it actually exists at the time of the assessment. It will also be the province and duty of the state assessors to preserve and report tabulated statistics of taxation and valuation of the different classes of property in the state which have never been heretofore kept

COLLATERAL INHERITANCES

The commission recommend the taxation of collateral inheritances after much deliberation. The report examines at length the constitutional objections to it that have in the several States been raised and settled by the courts, and concludes that, as a privilege tax there can be no valid constitutional ground on which it can be attacked.

SAVINGS BANKS

The proposed law subjects the accumulations as well as the deposits of savings banks to taxation by the State These accumulations would amount to several million dollars. As a measure for the encouragement of home investments by savings banks, a difference of taxes of one half of one per cent is proposed in favor of such investments.

CORPORATIONS.

The report says on this subject There is no State, we believe, whose laws afford greater facilities for the organization of corporations than do ours. By general law in this State, three or more persons may form a corporation to carry on any lawful business with capital stock to the amount of two millions of dollars—excepting only banking, insurance deposit, telegraph and telephone companies No scheme is so visionary, provided its purpose is, ostensibly 'lawful business,' that it may not become vested by virtue of our laws, with organized powers and, in a sense, supported and indorsed thereby. It is only necessary to organize, fix the amount of capital stock which the company may sell, record a certificate of organization and receive the approval of the attorney general No money is required to be paid in

"The shares of stock constitute the basis of business and the merchandise in which the corporation is to deal The State has therefore become the favorite organizing ground of corporations by speculators from other states and it is not uncommon that at least a dozen of them representing millions of stock are born in a day For the six months ended July 1, corporations with an aggregate of more than $83 000,000 were organized in this State While our laws afford such unusual facilities for inception of such corporations they are singularly deficient in provisions for deriving any adequate revenues from them Corporations formed for manufacturing and mining, for banking, for transportation, telegraph and telephone business, in fact all legitimate corporations which engage in business resulting in public welfare and owning property are subject to taxation Such corporations generally consists of citizens of the State, but often of citizens of other States who seek investment here

"The corporations which are not taxed are the hundreds formed for purely speculative purposes and may or may not have a legitimate basis of operation, or a place of business in this State other than nominal. Other States derive large revenues from such corporations, annually, besides a large amount from organization or enrollment fees In Pennsylvania, from $400 to $1,000 is levied on corporations by the State for charters, according to the amount of their capital stock If the charter is to run more than twenty years the tax is doubled. Corporations are also taxed three mills on a dollar of value of capital stock. In New Jersey, an annual tax of one tenth of one per cent of the entire capital of corporations as per law required, and the result is enormous.

"Last year the State realized from 1,580 corporations $268,355.16, through this one mill tax on capital in addition to the $1,405,613 received from railroad and other business corporations. It is unnecessary to cite the laws of the several States upon this subject. The above are enough to show precedents for taxing the capital, as per, of corporations and for charters or organizations. We have included in our bill provisions to cover both forms of taxation and with the confident belief that, if the law does not result in the material increase of revenue to the State it will at least have the effect to reduce the number of mushroom and noxious ventures which our general corporation laws encourage."

TAX ON PRIVATE AND SPECIAL ACTS OF LEGISLATURE

"Many States impose taxes or fees for private and special acts of legislation There is much propriety in this. While it is a part of the duty of the Legislature to enact certain laws for the benefit of private parties, yet its principal function is to enact general laws for the people It has come to pass, however, in the multiplying conditions of business and the peculiar circumstances of communities that a very large portion of the time of the Legislature is spent in investigating the propriety of special legislation or in the passage, or attempted passage, of private bills. The consumption of time on special legislation narrows the time that can be devoted to the public business, and causes direct expense to the State for printing, and in various other ways It is very proper, therefore, that parties who are to be benefited by such legislation at the expense of the public should contribute something to the State revenues. The proposed bill imposes a tax of fifty dollars upon such special acts of Legislature at are apt to consume most time, and which often confer valuable franchises, and upon other private acts the sum of ten dollars"

The proposed law imposes taxes on the gross instead of net premiums of insurance companies and puts at the unlicensed foreign companies by requiring their inspectors to give bond to the insurance commissioner conditioned for the payment of the same premiums on the insurance effected by their companies in this State as licensed companies are obliged to pay, it taxes sleeping car companies whose cars are run in this State, and makes street railroad companies taxable locally instead of by the State, as compensation for the use of streets in villages and cities A great many minor changes are made in the law and provisions relating to the enforcement of taxes on lands by sale greatly simplified The whole chapter of Revised Statutes relating to taxes is withdrawn, and the law contains sixty-nine sections more than the present law by reason of the new provisions. Several tables of statistics supplement the report throwing light on the new provisions.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 13, 1890.

General Benjamin F Butler regards the re-election of Speaker Reed as a great tariff victory.

Maine has increased her population 11,215 in the past ten years Bangor's contribution toward this result is 3,334, our present population being 19,089

If "Farmer" Allen lives long enough he may learn that the intelligent farmers in this State cannot be hood winked by the free trade doctrines he advocates with more zeal than common sense

We publish this morning an outline of the report of the Tax Commission This will be one of the most important matters before the next Legislature and the recommendations of the Commission will attract much attention The object of course is the equalization of taxes, and to this end the Commission has given the question long and careful consideration

The gavel of sweet, delicate flowers placed upon Speaker Reed's desk on his return to Washington was very inappropriate to the situation The flowers should have at least been twined around a 40 pound mallet —Boston Globe

It does require something of a "mallet" to keep the Democratic obstructionists from retarding all legislation, but the Speaker from Maine gets there every time.

The editor of the Belfast Age remarked in his paper Thursday that the Republican plurality in this State will be about 12,000 which under the circumstances is not a victory At the very time he wrote this statement the returns showed a Republican plurality of over 18,000 It would be interesting to learn just what he expects to gain by trying to suppress news known in every household in the State

The New York World is excessively unhappy over Mr Reed's great victory Deceived by the stuff sent out by its correspondent it fully expected to see him returned by a small margin, if he was returned at all, and when the wires flashed the news that the First District had given the Speaker a tremendous majority its disappointment was too great to be concealed The effect of the election outside of Maine is what troubles the World and it tells the members of the Democratic Committee that they better be up and doing

Now that the election is over the Democratic press attempt to discount the verdict in Maine declaring that it has no significance The same organs have discredited this sort of thing by laying particular stress upon the importance of the Maine election when they thought the Republican margin was going to be a very narrow one, on account of the reports received at the home offices from irresponsible space writers They have fallen into their own trap and the effort to crawl out is very amusing

Mr Boutelle is one of the few speakers whose logic and eloquence will bear the test of an exact report The stenographer's pencil instead of being a fatal measure which makes the speech that seemed strong in delivery a dwarf in cold print, shows a speech of Mr Boutelle's when printed to be even stronger in all its parts than it seemed in delivery.—Augusta Nor'l rald

The editor of the War Herald took a stenographic report of the speech, making seven columns in his paper and Mr Boutelle who is a very rapid speaker, insisted on that it was one of the most accurate reports ever made of his remarks anywhere Bro Collins is evidently an expert in this important department of journalism

Tom Reed is a fraud and McKinley is a fraud and the McKinley bill is the greatest outrage ever perpetrated on the people of the United States I have voted the Republican ticket all my life, but I tell you the man who made up the new tariff bill and the men who have voted for it are frauds, and I don't care who knows that I say it

The Boston Herald quotes the above words from a Boston importer and thinks they are very significant Such an outbreak taken in connection with the public approval of Speaker Reed and the McKinley bill as reflected by that five thousand majority is about as significant as would be the report of a top pistol compared with a broad side from one of the modern war ships

Chief Justice Peters.

The reappointment of Chief Justice Peters is announced in our telegraphic columns this morning Of course no other thought was for a moment entertained than that the distinguished Chief Justice would be kept at the head of the Supreme Court of Maine and the consummation of the unanimous wish of the people in the news referred to will be received with intense satisfaction Judge Peters is one of the ablest expounds of the law in the country, no State in the Union having a Judiciary that stands higher in public estimation than Maine's Supreme Court, of which the Chief Justice has been a valued member since 1873 That he may long continue to serve the State which honors itself in honoring him will be the wish of the people throughout the length and breadth of Maine

The Country Congratulates Speaker Reed

(Special to the Portland Press.)

WASHINGTON, September 11 It would be impossible to give an idea of the congratulations that have poured in upon Speaker Reed on account of his great indorsement by his constituents These congratulations have taken every form, from the shake of the hand from the man who rushes up to him on the street to the long letter from the man who is not in a hurry that the thing should be done right off The pile of congratulatory letters and telegrams on Mr Reed's table is a large one Some of the telegrams came to him at Portland and some here. These telegrams are from men in all walks of life, beginning with the President of the United States, whose message of congratulation has already been published, and running through the scale of political and personal acquaintances and friends. Many Republican clubs and committees also send their congratulations Here are a few of these messages

OFFICE OF THE
SUPREME JUSTICE,
SUPREME SITTING,
IRON HALL BUILDING.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind July 16, 1890
To all Officers and Members of Subordinate Branches, Greeting
FRIENDS—
The 30th day of June, 1890 closes another term with us by Order, Sterling, 1866 and one third years from its organization The ever-changing condition of the order brings us to a short period of review to learning and to benefit by the many experiences. It has been an honest pride with our minds the first dawn of its birth to see the Iron Hall become the guiding star to a better condition of mankind and to demonstrate that it should disappoint its enemies and satisfy and bless its friends How well we have succeeded amid all the perils and persecution, is seen from the record which I now present:
From January 1 to July 1, 1890, 625 certificates have been redeemed, giving to its faithful members completing a term of seven years the sum of $411 937 50
Not it is alone, 4 050 members have survived in the hour of their sickness, and paid 269,881 00
And to this immense public fund the loss of our departed friends who have died 39 587 50
And you realize that you have, in six months paid 6 754 claims, amounting to 9668 794 00
Representing a daily payment of thirty five hundred dollars
COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT, JULY 1 1890
Total benefits paid in nine uniform funeral years, (6 417 claims) $1 725 000 00
Benefits for sickness and accident (35 465 claims, death claims included 2,329 472 50
Total number of claims paid to date, 41,905 amounting to $4,054,472 50
ASSETS
Cash on hand, beyond Cost of funeral years, January 1, 1890, 692,534 25
Reserve fund, December 31 July 1, 1890, 170,000 00
Reserve fund, Interest to July 1, 1890, 10,000 00
Cash value real estate, July 1, 1890, 36,000 00
Total surplus assets, $1,189,534 25
MEMBERSHIP RECORD
Number of members January 1, 1890, 41,687
Increase to July 1, 1890, 6,000
Total, 50,687
Number of branches instituted from January to July 1, 1890, 73
Number of lost branch organized, 1,315
From January 1 to August 1 inclusive twelve representative jury have been called in a city equation, viz: April, June, July and August.
For full and exact list of claims paid for sickness insurance, by seven years, was paid by Bench, Lodge, members, who paid $15 00 each, a total of $265 00
Which amount of assessments paid by seven years, was 90 assessments paid by members, at 50 cents each, a total of $45 00
Amounting to 247 50
Thus a gratifying statement to present to the Order, and shows the prudence of our early decision which was essentially being made by those charged in new enterprises, to be without any foundation whatever.
Fraternally yours in U. P. F

Portable Cooking Range,
FOR WOOD OR COAL.
The Clarion Ranges have been before the public 16 years and they have grown more popular each year and to-day it stands at the head of all others
Please read what some of the Iron Ring dealers say about this celebrated Range
Messrs Dunn & Sleeper Lynn, Mass, say We have sold several hundred Clarion Ranges in the past five years and have as yet to find a case where one failed to work satisfactorily They are splendid bakers No other Ranges in these parts can hold a candle to it
The Kohler Furnace and Steam Heating Co of Boston, say We have sold between four and five hundred Clarion Ranges to the best people in Boston, who pronounced them as being the most economical and quickest baking Range that they ever used.
Messrs A L & E F Goss of Lewiston, say We have sold a round of the Clarion Row Clarion, Royal Clarion and Gold Clarion Ranges, no less than four thousand (4000) and they have always given entire satisfaction
Another remarkable fact is that the good old State of Maine heads the list We Lead and produced the best cooking range in the market—liable a point we are proud of Messrs Tom & Co of Dexter say We sold over seven hundred (700) Clarion Ranges No other Range can fill its place for its unrivalled qualities No other Manufacturer has ever made a Range to equal the Clarion, and why, is a conundrum we have never comprehended

We are better than ever prepared this season to furnish FRESH OPENED OYSTERS.
We have secured the services of MR WILLIAMS, of Norfolk Va, to open Oysters at THE BRANCH and MR DUNN, also of Norfolk will continue opening at the OLD STAND Both men are first class shuckers We will shell all of our Oysters so you will be sure of getting them fresh. We run the only two OYSTER HOUSES
in Bangor and by having experienced shuckers who can tell a bad oyster from a good one the moment they see it makes it a great advantage as one bad oyster will spoil the flavor of a whole quart
Do not buy Oysters that are Opened in Boston
You do not know how long they have been opened before they are shipped here or whether they throw out the bad ones or not One pint of our Oysters is better than a quart of them

MAINE STATE FAIR.

Aid Still the Unfavorable Weather Holds on.

Best Show Ever Known in Maine Killed by "Old Prob."

[Special Correspondence Wkly and Courier.]

LEWISTON, Sept. 12. The drizzling rain which commenced on the first morning of the opening of the Maine State Fair and continued at short intervals throughout the four days proved most depressive and discouraging to the officers and friends of the association, and the public generally heartily sympathizes with them, as everything else was in the most perfect condition to meet the hearty approval and appreciation of all patrons, without regard to what particular department they chanced to be interested in, as every class upon the list was full, complete and of wonderful perfection, considering the peculiar season for growing crops. That the show was of immense proportions can be seen from the number of entries in the several departments. The total number of entries in the

Live Stock Department,

including poultry, was over eleven hundred. There were three hundred and twenty horses upon the park, in the classes of stallions, brood mares, gentlemen's driving horses and colts of various ages; and one hundred and two horses in the trotting classes, and a more valuable and handsome display of finely bred trotting and other horses was never collected together upon any fair ground in New England, and the different breeds of cattle and other animals were well represented. So it was with fruit, flowers, vegetables, butter and cheese. Not one of the departments was neglected, and competent persons were in charge of each. Every attention and accommodation was extended to exhibitors, thus making all and good natured and the whole affair worthy of the name of The Maine State Agricultural and Pomological Society.

Patrons Pleased

To be sure, other Maine industries were not crowded out, and were well represented, but they were not allowed to encroach upon any agricultural or horticultural exhibit.

O. L. Larrabee, West Levant, E. H. Kenniston, Arnold, and C. A. Arnold, Arnold, represent Penobscot county among the display of fruit with twenty plates each. Kenniston and Arnold also show a large number of fowls and chicks and take their share of premiums as usual.

One of the most remarkable and made is the hall's that made by the united efforts of two Granges—Auburn and Turner. They competed for the first and second premiums of one hundred dollars for first and fifty for the second. Their displays occupied one entire wing of the hall and extended over nearly the whole main room of the second story. Either display would have been considered most creditable for a whole State exhibition of fine vegetables, dairy products, needle work, household goods, preserves and canned goods and paintings, all raised or manufactured by the members of the two orders. As may well be imagined the Trustees were greatly troubled to obtain a committee willing to decide and award the premiums, but after trying a whole day and a portion of another they succeeded in obtaining a committee of three to undertake the work, and they adopted a "scale of points" as best they could and compared one article of one grange with another of the same kind as best they could in the short time at their command and according to their best possible judgment awarded Auburn first and Turner second.

The Committee

must have been aware that there was a chance, where the two displays were so extensive, meritorious, beautiful, and to the casual observer about equal that some would not agree with them in their decision; but like true patrons of husbandry both orders submitted cheerfully to the decision of the committee. If both parties had received twice the amount of the first premium, it would not have compensated them for their time and trouble. The exhibit, however, was not made for profit but for the benefit of the good State of Maine. Whether the receipts of the State Fair prove to be sufficient to pay expenses or otherwise, the officers of the organization will have the consolation of feeling that they are entitled to the credit of getting together and arranging one of the best agricultural and horticultural shows ever seen in Maine. The attendance has been wonderfully large considering the weather. The Maine Central have run their trains on time, and with perfect regularity and care for the safety and comfort of their passengers. In fact, "old prob." is the only one to blame in this affair. If the weather clears up trots will be in order to-morrow, as the managers have a wonderful faculty of using the sun for "all it's worth" when it shows itself, and the owners of the trotters are always ready to start if the track is not more than half way to their knees. B. A. B.

[To Associated Press.]

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 12. The receipts of the State Fair up to Thursday evening were nearly $13,000. To-day opened so wet that the trustees postponed Friday's races till Saturday and declared Saturday's races off. The fair will close Saturday night. Following are some of the premiums reported:

Herefords, best herd, M M Bailey, Winthrop. His bull, Burnside, took first prize.

Cows, J W Woodward, South Gardiner.

Sussex, best herd, F G Burleigh, Vassalboro. Best bull, Homestead stock farm, Belgrade.

Herd Book Jerseys, best herd, W G Whitman, South Turner. Best bull, A P Russell, Leeds.

DISASTROUS FLOOD

Towns in Pennsylvania Valleys Inundated.

Reservoirs Rapidly Rising and Many Leaving Homes.

Disastrous Floods Reported at Several Places.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 12. A disastrous flood is raging in this vicinity. The Neshannock is higher than for years. At three o'clock Xenia at 11 rising with a heavy rain falling. Several churches there are inundated. Mills were obliged to close out, the bridge on the Pennsylvania Company's side track was swept away, together with cars loaded with steel rail on the bridge to hold it down. The Shenango is rising rapidly and will be all over the bottom land during the night.

Advices from Charleston, W. Va., says the sudden rise in the Gauley river yesterday carried away 31 coal barges, all loaded, of which eleven were valued at $50,000, were lost. The barges inflicted heavy damages to the government dam at Brownstown.

UNPRECEDENTED RAIN FALL.

Tributaries to Rivers Overflowing—Suffering Caused.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 2. The rivers here are rising steadily, though they are not near the danger point yet. Accounts from all along the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers promise much higher water before Sunday. At the head waters of the Allegheny the rain has been especially heavy and has been falling steadily since Monday, the fall averaging six inches in the past three days, something unprecedented in the upper counties. The tributaries to the Allegheny are all overflowing. At Oil City, Pa., the Western New York & Pennsylvania tracks are covered. All the lower streets of Canton, O., are flooded and great damage is being done by flooded cellars. Small farmers are also suffering. At Newcastle, Pa., the families in a hundred houses were forced to move to higher grounds. A score of mills along the Mahoning are covered with water and shut down.

IN SOUTHERN OHIO

Present Separation Brought in the Rivers.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 12. Despatches from northern Ohio show heavy rains. At Bucyrus four inches of rain fell is reported yesterday. The Sandusky river is so high as to cut off communication with North Bucyrus. At Akron the rainfall is serious. Great damage has been done throughout the country and in the city unusual destruction has been wrought.

A despatch from New Philadelphia, O., says the Tuscarawas river has raised twenty and one-half feet in one hour yesterday. This evening the whole valley is inundated.

Ways and Means Committee Discuss Amendments to the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. This morning for the first time in several months the ways and means committee held a session. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the treatment of the Senate amendments to the tariff bill and the entire session was so consumed. As the bill itself had not reached the committee no formal business could be noted and the proceedings were entirely confined to general discussion.

On one point there seemed to be practical agreement and that was that the amendments it should be referred by a committee, instead of acquiring at once to the request of the Senate for a conference. The date upon which the bill when enacted into a law shall take effect was also discussed, but without any result beyond the development of strong individual belief that the date fixed by the Senate, October 1st, was too early to admit of final action upon this bill and its distribution among the customs offices of the country.

The committee will meet again to-morrow.

United States Rights in Behring Sea.

The legality bill to apply the general laws of Oregon, so far as applicable, to the district of Alaska and to authorize the United States Circuit Court of Oregon to try cases arising in Alaska, was to-day sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee, Chairman Platt, of the Territories Committee, reporting that his committee did not properly have jurisdiction of the bill. The object of this measure is to secure judicial determination by the United States Supreme Court of the rights of the United States in Behring Sea.

ON THE RAMPAGE.

Rio Grande River the Highest Known for Ten Years.

Eagles Pass Under Water and Property Swept Away.

Iron Trestle Carried Down River and Another in Danger.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 12. Despatches from Texas say the Rio Grande river is on the rampage at Eagles Pass and is higher than has been known for ten years. All the lower part of the city densely populated by Mexicans, is six feet under water and much property has been swept away. No lives were lost. About one hundred feet of the iron trestle approach to the new bridge crossing the river was carried down yesterday with the officers of the customs and quarantine guards and several others to the railroad bridge, a mile below where the people in the trestle were rescued from the wreck. The river is still rising and the entire trestle, 1100 feet long, is in danger of being swept away. The track of the Mexican International railroad was washed out and travel has been suspended. The San Fernando river is also at flood height.

CONGRESSIONAL.

An Uneventful Day.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. The conference report on the railroad land forfeiture bill was considered.

At 6 the Senate adjourned.

House.

A message was received from the Senate announcing the passage of the tariff bill with amendments and by direction of the Speaker it was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

On the approval of the journal of Tuesday no quorum was present.

At 1.55 the House adjourned.

New Advertisements.

Alfred Jones' Sons, at Pickering square and The Branch, are headquarters for oysters, having them always fresh and opened at their stores by experienced men. Consult their advertisement and be wise.

Myer M. Levy is now prepared for the fall trade, having a new and stylish line of goods in, and offer bargains in different lines. He announces an all wool overcoat for $6 as a leader.

C. E. Lyons & Co. are still in it and have a fine line of fall carpets, rugs, draperies, curtain poles, window shades, etc. They invite inspection of their stock. Their prices are right and goods the best quality.

Very flattering recommendations are given the Gold Clarion range, manufactured and for sale by Wood, Bishop & Co. and it is acknowledged to be the best cooking range made. Read the endorsements of its qualities from various sources.

Jno. Tebbets & Co.'s laborers do fine work in the jewelry line.

The Woodbull estate on Fifth street, a desirable piece of property, is offered for sale or rent at easy terms at Pearl's agency.

C. A. Averill & Co. say they sell a barrel of flour at 50 cents less than at any other store.

H. N. Fairbanks speaks this morning of rumors, quoting Henry IV, and says he can be found at the "old stand."

Fresh oysters, crackers and home made pickles at Chas. York & Co.'s.

Business Items.

Good housekeepers prefer J. C. Davis' Old Soap.

Every school girl in Maine has a chance to win the $50 prize, a Quaker Range, offered by The Atkinson House Furnishing Co. and two other chances beside, one $40, one $20. Read their advertisement and then write your letter. Mother will help you.

FORCED TO LEAVE HOME.

Over 60 people were forced to leave their homes yesterday to call at their druggist's for a free trial package of Lane's Family Medicine. If your blood is bad, your liver and kidneys out of order, if you are constipated and have headache and an unhealthy complexion, don't fail to call on any druggist to-day for a free sample of this great remedy. The ladies praise it. Everyone likes it. Large size packages 50 cents. apr11TTS&W

BOLD IN TO THE LIGHT.

The man who tells you confidentially last what will cure your cold is practicing Kemp's Balsam this year. In the preparation of this remarkable medicine for coughs and colds no expense is spared to combine only the best and purest ingredients. Hold a bottle of Kemp's Balsam to the light, and look through it; notice the bright, clear look; then compare with other remedies. Price 25c. and $1. sample bottle free. TTS&W 4p

To write a letter is a simple task for such valuable prizes as The Atkinson House Furnishing Co. are offering. Every young lady under nineteen years of age has a chance to win a Quaker Range valued at $50, a $40 Sewing Machine, or a $20 Dinner Set. Read their advertisement and send in your letter.

THE PUREST AND BEST

Articles known to medical science are used in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla. Every ingredient is carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. The medicine is prepared under the supervision of thoroughly competent pharmacists, and every day in the process of manufacture is carefully watched with a view to securing in Hood's Sarsaparilla the best possible results.

THE BEST ADVERTISING.

The most efficient advertising is result of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that which comes from the medicine itself. That is, those who are cured by it, speak of it favorably and tell their friends and neighbors of the benefit they have received. The success of this medicine has been unprecedented, the almost unanimous verdict of the people in its favor is unsolicited, and is the result of merit alone. The publishers will be pleased to send to any address their pamphlet containing a statement of the cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and a full explanation of the reasons why it can do all that is claimed for it. Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Price $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

LOCAL MATTERS.

THE NEW PIER AT HAMPDEN NARROWS. Mr. Charles Harthan of this city, the well known dock and wharf builder, has just finished a job at a point in the river, about three miles below the city, which required great skill and judgment, on account of the character of the river bottom and the great depth of water where the work was done. Mr. Harthan, with his pilot crew of assistants, completed on Wednesday last, the building of a log pier for Sargent's new ice house, in Hampden Narrows, so-called. The pier proper is 64 feet long by 34 feet wide. The height from top of the pier to the river bottom, on the front, is 41 feet, and there is 20 feet of water at low tide. The structure stands at present isolated, in the middle of the river, but it is to be connected by a bridge with the shore, near the ice houses, during the month. The bottom of the river, where the pier is located was found upon examination by divers, to be very rough, by reason of the granite ledges breaking out, and a great abundance of loose rocks and boulders. This formation rendered the labor of getting a good foundation for the pier very difficult. The rapidity of the current at that point in the narrows, also added much to that difficulty. Mr. Harthan was, however, equal to the undertaking, and the completed pier is a credit to his skill, and maintains his reputation in that line of engineering.

RECOVERED THE PROPERTY.

More of the Work of William P. Appleyard.

The recent operations of William P. Appleyard, the Sebec genius who procured so many goods on credit, partly through the agency of orders sent upon paper with a bill head indicating that some kind of a firm was in existence, have resulted in a lively scurrying of the firms who supplied the goods without remuneration to get back their property. As quite a number of business houses were interested in the matter the search has been quite a lively one. One of these searches has just resulted in success, quite a quantity of goods being recovered. A Philadelphia house, in response to an order from Appleyard, sent eleven bales of cotton warp. After the exposure of Appleyard's business methods came, the firm took measures to recover the property. It was discovered that the cotton warp had been sent to Sebec and then reshipped to this city. The case was put into the hands of Sheriff William F. Reed and he started out to find the property wanted.

Inquiry at the Maine Central freight office revealed the fact that the goods had been taken from the freight shed, but by whom was not known. At last a truckman was found who remembered having taken the goods to a place on Exchange street, and upon going to the place indicated the sheriff found the bales piled in a cellar, where they had been for some time. The property is worth between $500 and $600 and is well worth saving. The bales will be sent on to the owners.

Sunday Services.

The ladies of the Crusade will have charge of the devotional services in the jail Sunday morning. Services commence promptly at nine o'clock.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Rev. John McGaw Foster, rector. Morning service, 10.30 A. M.; Sunday School, 12.30 P. M.; evening service, 5 P. M.

ACROSS THE NET.

The finals in the men's singles in the tennis tournament were concluded yesterday forenoon between Mr. Everts W. Pond and Prof. Charles E. Adams. They were played in Norumbega Hall, the Dow courts being wet from the rain. Mr. Pond won 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, and thus takes the first prize in singles. In the afternoon and evening the games were continued at the hall with the following result:

Men's Doubles—Bangs-Hunt beat Ayer-Dillingham 3-0, thus completing the preliminary round. First round, Pond-Brown beat Burr-Pierce 6-0, 6-2. Second round, Cutler and Adams lost by default to Clark and Wheelwright. Bangs-Hunt beat Pond-Brown 6-4, 6-3, leaving Bangs-Hunt to play Clark-Wheelwright to-day at 10 A. M. on the Dow courts if the weather permits, otherwise at Norumbega Hall. The sets between these contestants were very finely played, and the winners covered themselves with glory amid the applause of the spectators.

Mixed Doubles—Mr. Pond and Miss Brown lost by default. Mr. Brown and Miss Paine beat Mr. Clark and Miss Godfrey, 6-3, 6-2, leaving Mr. Bangs and Miss Chapman to play in the final against Mr. Brown and Miss Paine. Mr. Bangs and Miss Chapman won the first prize, with a score of 6-1, one set deciding, as in women's doubles.

Women's Doubles—Miss Chapman and Miss Brown beat Miss Paine and Miss Maling, 6-1, it having been agreed, owing to the lateness of the hour, to decide the matches by one set instead of two out of three. In the finals, Miss Godfrey and Miss Gertrude Clergue beat Miss Chapman and Miss Brown, 6-3, thus winning the first prizes. Their excellent playing received much applause.

AMUSEMENTS.

A Social Session.

To-night the attraction at the Opera House will be "A Social Session" with the Star Orchestra, which furnishes excellent music, its songs, dances and specialties. The Hussar Band made up of first-class musicians, handsomely uniformed, will give concerts in the early afternoon and evening. The Virginia City, Nevada, Territorial Enterprise says:

"A Social Session" is advertised as a very funny entertainment, and those who were at Piper's Opera House last evening have additional faith to advertisements. There is not a single cry in the whole show. But there is a laugh for almost every line in it. The fun is of that character which does not require any hard thinking to appreciate. Everybody laughs and laughs hard. While the auditors were not laughing they were being highly entertained with music and song. The house was packed to the doors and everybody went home happy.

Bancroft's Comic Opera Company.

There is already a large sale of seats for next week's season of comic opera, and those intending to be present should secure the tickets at once. The Springfield Republican of Aug. 9, said:

"Olivette" was welcomed by a good audience at the Gaiety last evening and will be repeated to-night, this being the company's farewell performance in this city. The feature of last night's rendering was the good work of Miss Bessie Gray, who acts as well as she sings. The production was bright and sparkling throughout, and will doubtless be well attended this evening.

Notes.

The Black Hussar Band connected with "A Social Session" Company, will make a street parade this afternoon, weather permitting, starting from the Bangor House at 2 o'clock.

Base Ball News.

The Bangors returned yesterday on the afternoon train from Lewiston, where they played three games during the State Fair, the champions of the State, they having beaten the Lewistons one of the games which made the standing in the series of eleven games, Bangors won six, Lewistons five. The Lewistons felt very sure that they were to be the "champs" and had made arrangements for the band to come out and salute the victors, and also for a [illegible] in that evening, but as it happened [illegible] sistic, but they couldn't play quite well enough to down the Bangors this year. An exhibition game was to have been played yesterday forenoon, but it had to be given up on account of the rain.

Sullivan left for his home in Methuen, Mass., yesterday morning. He is a fine back stop, and a player to be depended upon every time. If Bangor is represented on the diamond next year "Sullie" should be a member of it, as all the enthusiasts agree.

The Bangors will play no more games this year, and the members of the team will leave for their homes next Tuesday morning, after the benefit dance which will be given for them in City Hall next Monday night, when there will doubtless be a large attendance to give the boys a send off. Bangor people were well satisfied with this year's team, whose record is an excellent one. Many of the games have been marked by brilliant playing, and the members of the team have worked faithfully.

B. H. Beale Post 12, G. A. R., will meet at their hall Sunday at 11 A. M. to attend the funeral of the late C. A. Fenno.

Miss Doolittle, successor to Miss Warner, will open the kindergarten Oct. 1st, at 31 Pine street. The instruction includes a full course in Froebel's method, etc. Particulars are given in another column.

A WEAKNESS SOMEWHERE.

The investigation showed that this terribly fatal accident was caused by the weakened and overstrained condition of a single vital strand of the otherwise strong bridge.

So it is often in the human system. How many people there are who have a weakness somewhere. They appear to be in fair health, but they have malaria, a stomach trouble, a kidney or liver disease, a weakness in the back, a nervousness or trembling, strange sensations, depression of the mind, a sense of anxiety, accompanied by a weak, tired or languid feeling. Others become sleepless and wake more tired mornings than when they retired; their head feels dull and heavy, they have little or no appetite for breakfast, and their old-time energy and ambition appear to have deserted them. Thousands are troubled by indigestion, gas in the stomach or constipation, accompanied by a nervous and irritable condition.

These are all apparently slight weaknesses. A person may have, at first, only one or two of these symptoms; but they are to the body what the weakened strand is to the bridge, and any overstrain of the brain, nerves or physical system may precipitate the unfortunate person into utter mental, nervous or physical prostration and exhaustion.

It behooves all, therefore, when they detect even the slightest weakness in the system to procure immediately that great strengthener and invigorator, Dr. Greene's Nervura. Nothing will so quickly and surely restore the tired and overworked brain, and strengthen and invigorate the weak, worn out and shattered nerves. No other remedy in the world so rapidly regulates the system and restores the vital strength, both nervous and physical, and hundreds of thousands of people, whose weaknesses of the system were detected, have, by the timely use of this wonderful remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura, warded off serious illnesses, and been restored to sound and vigorous health.

It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and may be obtained at any druggists for $1 per bottle.

Saver of Life and Health.

I was broken down with nervous and physical Prostration before using Dr. Greene's Nervura and life was a burden. Now life is a joy and sleep is a luxury compared to it before taking Nervura. I relish my food and my nervousness has left me, so has the numbness. I wish I could shout loud enough so that all the world could hear, and tell them the gold Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. It has made me from a weak, trembling, nervous, irritable man to one who feels he is on the highway to long years of health and happiness through Dr. Greene's Nervura and the blessing of God.

ANDREW H. OLNEY.
Gibson, Steuben County, N. Y.

Dr. Greene, of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., the discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The perfection of this system realizes a complete cure almost assured, as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled. Send for symptom blank to fill out and write him about your case.

DYING WITH HUMORS

Which Three Doctors Could not Cure Cured in Four Weeks by Cuticura Remedies.

I wrote you about four years ago of the wonderful cure I made with your Cuticura Remedies of a loathsome leg humor on my face which three doctors failed to understand or cure. Three years ago last fall my son went to Sacramento, Cal., and after two or three months he broke out with a humor on his forehead and head, covering very much. He employed three different doctors, and at last they told him to go back to Maine, as his disease was caused by change of climate, and he could not live in California. My uncle who was then visiting home, cut he was visiting with a banker that the doctors could not cure. I wrote him to get some Cuticura Remedies and take according to directions, and behold freely with the Cuticura Soap, and in four weeks after he got my letter he wrote me he was entirely cured. He came home a few weeks after on a visit, and is at home now. His health is good. I have recommended these remedies to almost many people with bad cases that would not yield to doctors' medicines, and in no case have I failed to make a cure. If you wish to refer any one to me, I will answer, with pleasure. HARRISON STEVENS, East Jackson, Me

MY FAITH.

Be not as locket, oh my FAITH, to lie
On ocean's rocky floor, dim fathoms deep,
Where dead, forgotten things forever sleep.
And tumult of the waves comes never nigh.
And e'en beyond the glimpse of day's great eye
Thy task to clutch and blindly cling and keep—
My boat at rest—before the self same sweep
Of well known coast, o'erhead the self same sky.
Nay, rather, when the mighty winds are free
To them the people loyal to thy name,
To bid my bark the utmost seas explore.
Better to down amid the tempest's roar
Than rot in land locked bays and put not forth
At hearing of the land entreating sea.
—Arthur G. Cochran in New England Magazine.

Some Curious Patents.

A western man has patented a shield to prevent a horse from being cut by wire fences, and this consists of a sort of armor of padded cotton or leather which is strapped around the neck, breast and front legs of the horse. Another way of preventing horses from hurting themselves on these fences is found in the electrical division. The wires are charged with electricity, and when the horse goes against them he gets a shock which drives him back. In the same division there is an electric pan for preventing horses from cribbing. The manger is charged with electricity, and the moment the horse attempts to crib he gets a shock. Then there is a chicken hobbler consisting of a spring attached to a hen's leg, which, if the hen attempts to scratch, will move her onward, and will in fact walk her right out of the garden.—Frank G. Carpenter's Letter.

Women Crowding Into Journalism.

I have employed women in office work in newspapers with considerable satisfaction, and in numberless cases I have found that they could do some kinds of reporting far better than men. It is a mistake to think that women are only fit to write fashion articles. The editor of one of the great Sunday newspapers of New York is a woman. And she not only manages to keep her paper in full touch with the times, but she often leads in public thought and opinion.

Most editors give women a chance by being unfair to them. I think the day is coming when women will do a large proportion of newspaper reporting. In nearly all the big cities they are now doing a little of it. Even the house of parliament has been forced to admit a woman to the reporters' gallery, very much to the disgust of the male reporters.—Foster Coates.

The Mockery of Woe.

When the Duchess of Buckingham found herself dying she sent for Anstis, the herald, and settled all the points of her funeral ceremony. She was afraid of dying before the preparations were ready.

"Why," she asked, "won't they send the car spy for me to see? Let them send it, even though the tassels are not finished."

And then she retorted, as Horace Walpole affirms, a view from her ladies that if she should become insensible they would not sit down in her room until she was dead. Funeral honors appear, indeed, to have been her fancy, for when her only son died she sent messengers to her friends, calling them that if they wished to see him lying in state she would admit them by the back stairs.—New York Ledger.

The Product of a Fertile Brain.

Restaurant keepers have long been troubled as to how to put even with their boarders. Josephine Drist, of New York, has got out a patent for them. It consists of a table and stools, both of which run on an endless chain. The diner comes in, takes a seat on a stool, pays his twenty-five cents for his meal and it is set before him. The table then begins to move and the man moves along with it. It continues to move him along till it gets to the other end of the room, and at this time he is supposed to have finished his meal, for his dishes slide off against a wheel and his stool slides out with him. There is an endless chain of these stools, and the procession of diners and dinners goes on continuously.—Frank G. Carpenter's Letter.

Not Apprehensive.

I had a female acquaintance who lived at the foot of a hill in North Brookfield, on whose slope was a small graveyard. At the bottom of the slope was the well which supplied her with water. One day a friend from Boston, a doctor, visited her and when he took a walk after dinner was horrified at discovering the dire possibilities of the drainage from the location of the tombs into the well. He rushed into the house to remonstrate, but after he had told his horrible tale all the woman said was:

"Oh, I reckon I won't hurt me any. There's mighty few relations that's buried up yonder."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Queen Who Smokes.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, is another of the royal ladies who can be happy in the use of tobacco. Her flashing black eyes look laughingly through fragrant clouds of smoke, and she is wont to declare that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life. King Humbert, who is still as much in love with his charming consort as on the day when, twenty-one years ago, he first brought home to the Royal palace at Turin the lovely daughter of the Duke of Genoa, delights in smoking his cigar in her company.—Paris Letter.

Acute Sore Throat.

Among the best remedies for this common affection is hot water. It should be applied outside and inside—outside by means of flannels wrung out of water as hot as can be borne, applied to the throat and well covered twice a day, for from fifteen minutes to half an hour. Gargle, hot water, as hot as can be borne, every fifteen minutes or half an hour until relieved, and drink plenty of hot water so as to get in a profuse perspiration. A few hours of this treatment will effect a cure in any simple case.—Herald of Health.

To Serve and Carve a Leg of Mutton.

A leg of mutton should always be brought to the table on its back, with the "handle" or knuckle to the right of the carver. Cut crosswise, beginning almost in the middle, but a little nearer the knuckle than the tail. Cut the slices toward the right until you come to the bone, proceeding in the same way on the other side. If you are studying economy use the knife only when near the bone while hot, as the juices of the lean meat harden to it when cool.—Boston Globe.

WRATH OF THE FOREST.

WOODSTOWN'S UNAVAILING BATTLE WITH AVENGING NATURE.

How Trees Molded Into Houses and Utensils Resurrected Themselves—Remarkable Experience of a New Frontier Town—Had to Desert Their Homes.

The site was superb for building a town. They had only to clear the river bank by felling a part of the forest—of the immense virgin forest rooted there since the beginning of the world. Then, sheltered on all sides by wooded hills, the town would descend to the quays of a magnificent harbor, established at the mouth of the Red river, but four miles from the sea.

As soon as the government at Washington had granted the privilege, carpenters and woodchoppers went to work. But you never saw such a forest. Clinging to the soil with all its vines, with all its roots, when they failed it as one cut it sprung up again at the other, acquiring fresh youth from its wounds, and each blow of the axe brought out green buds. The streets, the town squares, barely marked out, were invaded by vegetation. The walls grew less quickly than the trees, and as soon as raised crumbled beneath the upheaval of the still living roots. To overcome this resistance that dulled the blades of the hatchets and axes they were obliged to have recourse to fire.

Soon an enormous town, all in wood, like Chicago, stretched along the bank of Red river, with its broad, straight streets, numbered and glittering about its squares, its Merchants' exchange, its markets, its churches, its schoolhouses, and the whole municipal train of sheds, custom house stations, docks, depots and shipyards. The town of wood (Woodstown, as they called it) was speedily peopled by the plaster dryers of new places. A feverish activity was displayed in every quarter, but upon the surrounding hills commanding the crowded thoroughfares and the harbor packed with vessels a somber and menacing mass extended in a semicircle. It was the forest looking on.

WOE TO WOODSTOWN.

It was gazing at the insolent town that had taken from it its place on the river bank and 3,000 gigantic trees. All Woodstown was made of its life. The towering masts that swayed down in the harbor, those innumerable roofs, inclined one toward the other, even to the last hut of the most distant suburb, it had furnished everything—even the instruments of toil, even the furniture, limiting its service only by the length of its branches. Hence what terrible hatred it cherished against that town of thieves.

While winter lasted they perceived nothing. The people of Woodstown heard occasionally a hollow cracking in their roofs, in their furniture. From time to time a wall was cleft asunder, a store counter noisily burst in twain. But new wood is subject to such accidents, and no one attached any importance to them. However, at the commencement of spring—a sudden, fierce spring, so rich in sap that they heard it beneath the ground like the babbling of brooks—the soil began to be agitated, upheaved by invisible forces. In each house the foundations, the partition walls swelled, and they saw upon the floors long bulges, such as mark the passage of a mole in the fields. Neither doors nor windows—nothing, in fact—worked any longer. "It is the dampness," said the inhabitants. "When warm weather comes that will be over."

SUB UNDER EVERY ROOF.

Suddenly, on the morrow, when a great storm came from the sea, which brought summer amid its scorching lightning and lukewarm rain, the town, when it awoke, uttered a cry of stupor. The roof roots of the public buildings, the belfries of the churches, the floors of the houses and even the wood of the bedsteads were sprinkled with a green tint, thin as mold, flimsy as lace. Closely examined it was a quantity of microscopic buds, in which the veins of leaves could already be distinguished. This freak of the rain aroused without causing alarm, but before evening bouquets of verdure were blooming everywhere—upon the furniture, upon the walls. The branches grew as they looked at them. Mightily grasped by the hand, one felt them grow and struggle like fluttering wings.

The following day all the apartments had the appearance of greenhouses. Vines clambered up the walls of the stairways. In the narrow streets the branches joined one roof to another, casting over the noisy town the gloom of the avenues of the forest. Mallows were becoming alarming. While the assembled scientists were deliberating over this case of extraordinary vegetation, the crowd hastened out of doors to see the different aspects of the miracle. The exclamations of surprise, the astonished noise of all these idle people gave solemnity to this strange event. Suddenly some one cried out, "Look at the forest!" And it was observed with terror that in the last two days the verdant semicircle had approached very much nearer.

RETURN OF THE VIRGIN FOREST.

Then Woodstown commenced to understand and be afraid. Nevertheless, every body fell bravely to work with scythes, harrows and axes, and they made an immense abatis of boughs. But in vain. From hour to hour the confusion of virgin forests, amid which the twining of vines joins gigantic saplings together, invaded the streets of Woodstown. Already the lowests and cellars were pouring in. There were nests in all the corners, a great flutter of wings and multitudes of chattering little birds. In a single night the granaries of the town were emptied by the newly hatched broods.

Vaguely, amid the noisy swell of the foliage, the hollow strokes of the axes and hatchets were heard, but on the fourth day all work was admitted to be impossible. The grass grew too high, too thick. Climbing vines hooked themselves to the arms of the woodchoppers and prevented their movements. Besides, the houses had become uninhabitable; the pieces of furniture, loaded with leaves, had lost their shape. The ceilings broke open, pierced by the lance of the rushes, the long spear of the thorn trees, and in the places of the roots spread out the immense domes of the catalpas. All was over. Only flight remained.

Across the network of plants and vines that was tightening more and more the terrified people of Woodstown rushed toward the river, bearing with them as much as they could of their wealth of precious objects. But how difficult it was to reach the water's edge! The quays no longer existed; nothing was to be seen of them but gigantic reeds. The ship yards, in which vessels had been in process of construction, had given place to forests of pines, and in the harbor, all in bloom, the new ships looked like little islands of verdure. Happily some protected frigates were there. Upon these the crowd took refuge, and from their decks they saw the old forests victoriously join the new.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Under Control.

The amount of control which may be exercised over these actions which we are accustomed to look upon as wholly involuntary is neither appreciated nor developed as it should be. There was not only a clever stroke against an annoyance, but a wonderful lesson in the means taken by a clergyman, not long since to suppress disturbance in his congregation.

It was during the protestations of the Irishman that the Rev. Dr. Blank gave his congregation a reminder that will not soon be forgotten. The restless forces under which the epidemic presented itself had in common the faculty of making people cough in church, and the disturbance which arose from this source put all the sensitive nerves of the divine on edge.

One Sunday, morning in particular, it seemed as if half the people in the congregation were [illegible] Suddenly, while the [illegible] raising his voice to make himself heard, he was particularly impressive. Suddenly, with no warning whatever, he stopped in the very midst of a sentence and stood perfectly silent. Surprise held the congregation silent also.

It is well known to physicians that persons taken by surprise will stop coughing, and during the moment for which Dr. Blank stood regarding his congregation not a single cough was heard in the church. The preacher held the attention of the audience for a space which, although really brief, under the circumstances seemed long.

"I paused to remind you," he said at length, "that coughing is more largely under a person's control than we are accustomed to suppose."

He took up the thread of his discourse and went on, but for the rest of that day at least there was remarkably little further coughing in that church.—Youth's Companion.

Resistance of Wood Posts to Fire.

The endurance of wooden posts when subjected to the action of fire has been strikingly shown in a fire in England, which occurred in a large warehouse, and raged with great fury for five hours. The post was found eventually but little injured by the fire. It was taken out, and as a further test was placed in the midst of a heap of shavings, light and heavy wood, saturated with petroleum. This was ignited, and burned for two hours and a half, at the end of which the post was withdrawn and split longitudinally with steel wedges in order to ascertain its condition. The post was pitch pine—and about the most inflammable wood known—and yet, after an exposure of seven hours to intense heat, it contained within a quantity of perfectly uninjured and apparently fresh wood, probably capable of supporting the whole weight which the original post was designed to carry.—New York Telegram.

Courageous Twin Tots.

Two tiny tots—twins—about 6 years old, were the cynosure of many eyes one day at the foot of West One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street, because of the wonderful courage they displayed and the antics they cut up while bathing with their father. The little ones were dressed in bathing suits made of striped ticking, and a bevy of young ladies who watched them declared they "were too cute for anything." Standing on a float, side by side, first one and then the other would dive headlong into water ten feet deep, neither of them being able to swim a stroke, and their father would catch them as they arose to the surface, laughing and anxious for another plunge. They kept up their antics for some time, to the great delight of quite a crowd of onlookers, who applauded the tots for their fearlessness.—New York Telegram.

In a New York Family.

A young couple, conspicuous in the set known as the "Four Hundred," who inhabit a huge mansion in the most fashionable quarter of the town and diligently ape the ways of the English aristocracy, were dining alone one evening when the husband casually remarked, "By the way, Honoria, have we not a child aged about 8?" "I guess we ought to have, but I'll just inquire," replied the lady. "John Thomas, is there a nurse in the establishment now?" "Yes, madam." "Then send her to me." In a few minutes a daintily attired young woman appeared from a distant part of the mansion and informed the anxious mother "Why, certainly, you had a child up to last Sunday, but I lost her down town one day last week. But no matter, the detectives are after her, and when I get her back I'll duly notify."—Chatter.

A Pilot's Life.

The life of a pilot is filled with delightful uncertainties. His is like a sealed bottle tossed on the waves of the ocean. He may be picked up in a day, had he may be carried over the seas for more than a week before some passing steamer comes to "rescue him." A pilot boat left New York prepared for a two weeks' cruise. Within ten hours from the time she left the bay she was back at Staten Island, all her pilots having been taken off by incoming steamers. She put to sea again and started up the coast. One of her stations is at Newport, and she reached there eleven days after her second start, having cruised all over the ocean between New York and Newport without having sighted a single steamer.—New York Tribune.

A Monster Rose Bush.

The trunk of a rose bush which is in full bloom at Ventura, Cal., is 8 feet in circumference at the ground. The first branch, which is thrown out at a height of about four feet from the ground, is 31 inches in circumference. Wagon loads of vines (to is of the climbing variety) are clipped from it annually, yet it covers an area of 1,800 square feet. It was planted in 1875. Within another fourteen years, if nothing happens to it, it will have outstripped the gigantic rose tree at Cologne, which has had over 300 years to grow in.—St. Louis Republic.

Disappointed.

Flossie—Hold real still, papa. I want to look through your head.

Papa—Heavens, child! What do you mean?

Flossie—Jess want to see through, that's all. Mamma told Mrs. Smith last evening that everything she told you went in at one ear and came out at the other. But I can't see through at all.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Birth of Punctuation Marks.

It is strange that the use of points for purposes of punctuation should be such a comparatively modern invention. Of the four generally used points only the period (.) dates earlier than the Fifteenth century. The colon (:) is said to have been first introduced about 1485, the comma (,) some thirty-five years later, and the semicolon (;) about 1670.—Chatter.

Resentment of Death.

"Yes, I believe that many a soldier who loses his life in battle has a presentiment of death," said Edward McDevitt, of the United States clerk's office. "I formed that conclusion early in the war of the rebellion, and as the years progressed I became more firmly intrenched in the belief. I can recall many instances where young men showed by their conduct that they were marked for death, and in such case the man was killed as soon as we went into battle.

"There was one case that impressed me more than any other. Wales in our company a young country fellow—a big, strapping fellow, and one of the bravest men I ever saw go into battle. I saw him in numerous battles, and I never saw him flinch until the day he was killed. He didn't seem to know what fear was.

"One morning we were lying in our trenches when the word was passed along that we were going into battle. This young man was next to me, and I noticed that he turned white at the announcement. When we were ordered to fall in he trembled all over, and was unable to speak. I hardly carry his gun. I never saw such a change upon so little cause, and I asked him what was the matter.

"'I feel that my time has come,' was his reply, and that was all he said.

"We were going up a hillside, and he'd gone maybe them a hundred feet from the trenches when a shell burst in front of us. A piece of it struck the young soldier in the face and carried away a part of his head. Death was so sudden that he never knew how it occurred. That is only one of many like instances that I might cite in support of my belief."—Indianapolis News.

Vanished in the Sahara.

That part of the sandy and sultry Sahara near Biskra has been the scene of a tragedy which was caused by a want of water. Some time ago a young soldier named Jouvaud was sent from a topographical station in Algeria to Biskra for electricity. He was accompanied by a number of camels, which carried the necessary apparatus. Jouvaud was never seen again. He left the station with his camels, and it is supposed that he lost his way in the desert, and that he and his camels perished of thirst.

The Want of Self Confidence.

There are some who never seem to believe themselves capable of anything; they see others press forward to attempt and achieve, and shrink back into a desponding inactivity. Having no faith in themselves they undertake nothing and effect nothing. If they are convicted of some fault or bad habit they have so little hope of being able to cure it that they scarcely make an effort. If some avenue of usefulness and honor opens up before them they draw back, almost sure that they should not succeed, and decline to enter. If some duty presses urgently upon their consciences they try to quiet its promptings by pleading inability. Thus their lives pass away in uselessness, their faculties do not develop or their characters improve, their abilities are wasted, they dwindle into insignificance, and all this, not for lack of power, but for the want of a confidence and courage that would set that power into good practical working order.—New York Ledger.

HE WEARS THE SCAR TODAY.

A Deputy Marshal and a Gambler Raised Revolvers Together

"Do you see that tall man standing there?" asked the colonel. "Notice how he breathes his hair forward on the sides, as some Englishmen do. One of those locks hides a scar which bears eloquent testimony as to a narrow escape from death.

"Thirty years ago he was a deputy marshal in Nevada. He started out one day to arrest a notorious gambler who had killed a man over a game of cards. The gambler knew that the marshal was seeking him but with a cool effrontery walked about the streets all day. Without fear, the deputy marshal—heard that the man he wanted was to a well known barroom. He set out for the place, and carelessly walked boldly in. He had not crossed the threshold before he found himself looking into the barrel of a six-shooter.

"'Come, Hardy,' he said coolly, 'this won't do. I've come to get you, and I want you.'

"'See here, John,' said the gambler, 'I don't want to kill you, but I won't let any man arrest me. Go away and let me alone.'

"'No, I want you,' said the marshal quietly. 'Put down the six shooter and come with me.'

"'I'll see you shot first,' said Hardy.

"'I can't help that,' said the other. 'I must have you. Now you have the drop on me, but you must come with me or kill me in cold blood.'

"'I don't want to kill you,' said Hardy.

"'Then put down your gun.'

"'John, I won't be arrested. Don't touch me. I don't want to shoot a man without cause.'

"'I've got to do it, Hardy.'

"'See here,' said the gambler, turning white, 'if you move a foot I kill you. But I hate to be a coward. That was fair and square last night. We both pulled together.'

"The marshal shook his head.

"'I'll do one thing, John,' Hardy went on. 'I'll back up to that wall. You back up to the other. I'll drop my revolver to my hip and you can draw yours. Then it's the best man.'

"The marshal moved backward to the wall and Hardy did the same. Then the marshal drew his revolver and held it at his side, muzzle down. All this time Hardy had kept his weapon leveled at the marshal. Slowly his arm sank until his revolver touched the seam of his trousers. Both men were perfectly calm and immovable, the marshal determined looking, the gambler still pale.

"'Now, John,' said Hardy. Instantly both weapons went up. It was all over so quickly that both men were on the floor together. But Hardy had fired too soon; his ball went at an upward angle and grazed the marshal's temple. But the marshal had sent his bullet straight on a line to Hardy's heart, and there was no need to arrest the gambler."—New York Tribune

A Centenarian's Giant Progeny.

Probably the most remarkable family in the United States is the Walker family, living near Hendersonville, N. C. William Walker, the oldest member of the family, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and professes to remember the revolutionary war. He is generally supposed to be about 110 years of age, although the record is not as exact as might be wished.

At an early day Walker came to North Carolina, where he raised a family of twenty-two children, equally divided between the sexes. The eleven boys ranged in height from 6 feet 4 inches to 7 feet, and all of them are still living. Seven of these men have sons, and there is not one of these sons who is less than 6 feet in height. There are twenty-five grown grandsons and five grown great-grandsons, and every one of them is full 6 feet and over in height.

They have always lived in the mountains a few miles from Hendersonville, and follow farming for a livelihood. No record has been kept of the generations, but there are five living generations, and the families have been large, so that the descendants of this man, who is still living, if brought together would make a respectable sized town.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Possibilities of the Bells.

Bell ringers ought to be able to give a change of bell at every performance. It is curious to notice what a variety of changes can be rung on bells. Eight notes will give 40,320 different passages, and ten notes 3,628,800. The changes which may be rung on twelve bells are 479,001,600, which, at the rate of two strokes a second, will take ninety-one years to ring. Another authority says, upon the calculation of ringing 720 changes in an hour, it would take an incessant ringing of thirty-seven years to accomplish 40,000,000. Fourteen bells, at the same rate given, would take 13,076 years to accomplish the changes, and upon twenty-four bells the number of changes would not be ringing in the course of 1,000 years, and upon twenty-three bells it would require 24,000 years. Twenty-two bells would require 1,124 years, and twenty-one bells 52 years. Twenty bells would require 2 years 304 days, and nineteen bells 120 days. Eighteen bells would require 6 days 16 hours, and seventeen bells 17 hours 20 minutes. Sixteen bells would require 2 hours 43 minutes, and fifteen bells 45 minutes.

A GREAT DISCOVERY!

It is claimed to be the surest, most prompt and most effectual remedy known for this child killing disease. As a cathartic vermifuge it has no equal. It is safe, it kills all of worms and the whole family of creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity are triumphantly expelled by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes to us from all sections where its virtues are only effectually removed from the system these troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have to learn Walk and pray for years, are at once in perfect health and restored to health by its use. Being a mild and gentle laxative, it is a deterrent of the greatest value. It is purely vegetable and cleared to beat. It has also expelled several Lizards. One eight inches length, in appearance belongs to the worst species and looks like a vest, side young alligator. Pin caused by worms and indigestion.

A DIVIDEND DISCOURSE.

A DRUMMER'S REMARKS ON THE "PLUG HATS" MARCH INTERRUPTED.

The High Hat Marks the Progress of Civilization—The Cowboys No Longer Wear a Tile—But the Old Water Tank Recalled Greater Methods.

"No, sir," said the drummer, "there is not a place in the country now where a man who behaves himself can't wear a plug hat. I don't mean to say that there are no lively towns, but there is practically no frontier such as there used to be.

"The cowboy still occasionally drops into the saloon and shoots the lights out, he likes now and then to shoot the insulators off the telegraph poles, and there are other eccentric and sometimes boisterous forms of amusement that still find favor with him, but it is no longer considered good form, anywhere to express disapprobation of the wearing of a plug hat by shooting it off the head of the wearer.

ACCEPTING THE WHITE SHIRT

"In some places this pleasing condition of affairs has been brought about by the active work of a single man, aided in a measure, doubtless, by the natural influence of time when their feelings are properly appealed to. For example, in one camp after it had been discovered by the men who conveyed the remonstrance of the older inhabitants that the quiet, unassuming stranger who had persisted in wearing a white shirt had an arm as big around as an oyster keg, muscles of steel, and a heart of a lion and the tiger's undisputed right of movement, there arose a feeling that possibly the shirt question was debatable, and some men went so far as to say openly that a man ought to be permitted to wear a white shirt if he wanted to, and when the quiet man had in quick succession knocked out seven supporters of the negative side the change of sentiment was so great that it amounted practically to a reversal of public opinion, and by common consent he was permitted to wear his shirt.

"The fact is that although men are as indignable as ever on vital questions and as ready at ever to fight when the cause is really worth fighting for the great majority are becoming more and more disposed to concede to each citizen the free enjoyment of his personal rights. In these remoter parts the principal causes contributing to this feeling of enlightenment have been the gradual gathering of the men by the more organized and frequent means of communication and the consequent general spread of civilization. You see"—

The speaker was a New York drummer who had traveled the country over and again from one corner to the other. His discourse was delivered in the smoking room of a sleeping car on a far western railroad. His sole auditor was the reporter. The drummer's discourse was temporarily interrupted by the gripping of the air brakes and by the passing of the conductor through the car at the same moment. We both asked what station we were coming to and when the conductor passed we recognized it as a place where some time before a train had been held up by robbers. It was a little place where engines stopped for water. The robbers had boarded the engine as it stood at the tank and overpowered the engineer and fireman and after another fight they had robbed the express and mail cars but they had not molested the passengers.

It was not long after nightfall when we approached the station, but the night was very dark. As the train passed slowly through the pine woods it seemed as though the great gaunt trees were moving together for a contemplation of that night's gloomy than standing alone. Naturally our talk was of train robbing. We decided that the modern way of robbing the express and mail cars only was more in keeping with the general growth of progressive methods and that it was undoubtedly pleasanter for the passengers.

The train halted with the engine alongside the tank. It did seem as though it took the engine a long time to drink but it was a big engine. Now the train started and we began to settle down to continue the journey when the brakes grip again, and the train stops suddenly. Now our car is just abreast of the tank from behind which the robbers had emerged. We dare say it from the dripping spout in front as far around as the eye will reach, but in the most casual manner, just as we might have looked at a shot or a fence or whose else.

SELF A LITTLE CURIOUS.

It was a little curious of course that the train should pull up suddenly at that particular spot after having come started but beyond the commonplace Wonder what's up now? neither of the passengers in the smoking room betrayed any particular interest in the situation. The brakeman went out. Everything around seemed very still but the drummer and reporter continued in easy conversation. What under current of thought there might be in the drummer's mind the newspaper man didn't know but he found time blame if to think that if to stop did mean robbers it might be that they were men who still pursued the crude methods of personal robbery.

When the train had started again as it did very soon and, quickly gathering head way I sat left the water tank and its dismal surroundings in behind, the two men still talked on in the easy quiet manner though a close observer might have noticed in the latter bearing just a touch of added buoyancy, which silenced approbated animation when the conductor came in. Without being in the smallest degree foppish, the conductor was distinctly natty in appearance, and he was also a quick, self reliant and energetic man. It was, perhaps, his breezy activity of movement that stirred the two passengers for they ceased their conversation, and both asked in the same moment. What did we stop for?

It was simple enough. The conductor had stood on the tank for a moment after giving the engineer the signal to go ahead and had taken another glance at the forward cars as they slowly passed him. On the front platform of the baggage car he saw a tramp. He jumped on the rear platform of the same car, and pulled the bell cord. The engineer stopped the train. The conductor was on the platform with the tramp before the train stopped. If the tramp had given any reason why he should be permitted to ride it as possible the conductor would have carried him. As it was he simply lifted him off and stood him on the ground without a word, and then he pulled the bell cord again.

The train was now running at its ordinary rate of speed. The regular beat of the wheels as they measured off the rails hastened the beginning of a long stage of the journey. The drummer placed the camp stool at the right distance to support his feet comfortably, relighted his cigar, settled back and continued.

"You see ——"—New York Times.

Automatic Elevator Door Closer

A simple and inexpensive construction has been devised for automatically operating the sliding doors guarding the exposed landings of passenger elevators and by means of which all the doors in the elevator shaft are held positively closed, except the door at the particular landing where the car is stopped. The car can then be moved from a remote landing and brought to any other above or below, closing the door of the landing it leaves, without requiring the services of an attendant on the car. The apparatus may be readily applied to all elevators, old or new, where the doors slide on rollers, and can be easily manufactured and put in place by any good mechanic.—New York Telegram.

Well Preserved Wood.

H. Dean, of Jonesboro, Ga., has a block from a garden gate post that was hewn out and placed in the ground in 1801. He made a visit to his sister in Baldwin county, and it was at her home that he secured the block from the aged yet serviceable post. The post was hewn out of a light wood tree, and is perfectly sound today. Mr. Dean says it is good for another eighty-six years and perhaps much longer.—Chicago Herald.

He Thinks Like It.

"Why, how did you come that game, Jay? I thought you would be home for 1.50."

"So did I before I got a verdict for $5,000 against the railroad company, but that straightened it out in no time."—Epoch.

THE PLAGUE.

The epidemic panic has brought every daily publication in the country to its knees. Its effect is felt in every quarter of the globe. Whenever a case of cholera appears in any city, and the slightest sentiment is aroused, the daily publication is the first to feel the effect. Its circulation falls off, its advertising space is curtailed, and the whole business of the publication is paralyzed. Everybody wants to know the latest news, and the daily publication is the only source of information. Therefore, sound words and the daily publication of the latest news is necessary to the public.

Read the following statement that speaks for itself:

Knows the daily cattle as they go
Have deep scoring to put the cattle. And that Smiles down the filthiest of the city, where rot
Upon the poppies in a working bed.
—Christian Observer, Edinburgh.

His Way of Advertising.

"I beg pardon for intruding upon your time," said the polite, smiling man with the small valise in his hand, "A peddler is a nuisance, I know it as well as anybody. But there are various kinds of peddlers, and all of us must live. It isn't our fault that we are here. Those of us that earn our living honestly have to share the odium that belongs to the cadging. I'm not complaining of this, gentlemen. It is part of the curse that came in the original package to Adam. If there is any one of you that has a spot of grease on his coat, vest or pant—trousers," he added, opening his valise and taking out a small cake of soap and sponge, "I shall be happy to remove it, and without charging a cent for it. I'm not asking anybody to buy my soap. It's my way of advertising. My dear sir, allow me. There is a little spot on your vest."

He rubbed the spot with a piece of soap, deftly applied the sponge, made a few passes over the cloth with a piece of cotton cleaning, and said:

"There, sir, that spot is gone. You will never see it again. And probably you will never see me again either, as I travel but once through a community. My goods will be found at the stores. I take it for granted that nobody wishes to buy a cake of my soap. I wish you good morning, gentlemen."

After the polite, smiling visitor had gone away the gentleman whose garment had been operated upon had occasion to consult his watch.

It wasn't there.

It had disappeared with the spot.—Chicago Herald.

What Tears Are Made Of.

The principal element in the composition of a tear, as may readily be supposed is water. The other elements are salt, soda, phosphate of lime, phosphate of soda and mucus, each in small proportions.

A dried tear seen through a microscope of good average power presents a peculiar appearance. The water, after evaporation, leaves behind it the saline ingredients which, amalgamate and form themselves into lengthened cross lines, and look like a number of minute fish bones.

The tears are secreted in what are called the "lachrymal glands," situated near the eyeball and underneath the lid. The contents of these glands are carried along and under the inner surface of the eyelids by means of six or seven very fine channels, and are discharged a little above the cartilage supporting the lid.

The discharge of tears from the lachrymal glands is not occasional and accidental, as is commonly supposed, but continuous. It goes on both day and night—though less abundantly at night—through the "conduits," and spreads equally over the surface of the lids.

After serving its purpose the flow is carried away by two little drains, situated in that corner of each eye nearest the nose, into which they run, and called the "lachrymal points."—Brooklyn Standard.

Stark's Pathetic Romance.

A strange and pathetic romance ended happily at the Old Bailey Tuesday. One William Stark, a most respectable laborer was indicted for trying to murder his sweetheart. He, it, she had cried each other for seven years. Poverty however, had kept them from marrying. Out of his earnings of £1 a week Stark had kept the girl her aged and infirm father and brother and his own mother from the workhouse. She fearful of being a further burden, left to stay with a brother. The lovers however met one day—the man pressing the young woman to stay she still dreading their poverty, refusing. Wild with despair Stark tried to edit the girl's throat and his own. The edge and the jury both agreed in sentencing him to a mere formal punishment, and the divorced couple met the reward of their long self-denial by getting a gift of £5 from the sheriff's fund to enable them to marry and set up house together.—London Letter.

Bridging Behring Straits.

Engineering skill has been advanced so far that no project is now sufficiently stupendous to appal the imagination. Men have recently been drawn to bridge Behring Straits and construct an all rail route to Europe via Asia. The chief difficulty—one that for the present at least is insurmountable—is, such a road would not pay, and therefore could not command the necessary capital. As to the construction of two bridges, each twenty miles long, across the arm of the sea, that could probably be done if there was money in it. But in spite of the assurance that the ultimate is solid, going to the Pacific Gulf stream, and that there is no danger from ice, it were a requiring some education of the traveling public to induce them to risk their lives on such a bridge.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Hungry Sheriff.

Sheriff Ellsworth, of Richmond county, N. J., recently taxed up a bill of costs amounting to $1,852 in a South Beach real estate dispute, and Judge Bartlett cut it down to $1,50—all that could be legally charged, exclusive of traveling expenses at the rate of six cents a mile. The sheriff of Richmond county is a believer now in the theory that this world is all a floating circus and that he is a poor, neglected clown.—New York World.

As It Should Be.

A class of boys had this sentence given to them for correction.

"We saw a marble bust of Sir Walter Scott entering the vestibule."

One of the boys handed in the following version which bears internal evidence of having been made in early time.

"Entering the vestibule, we saw Sir Walter Scott's bust a marble."—Cor Youth's Companion.

Probably

"Did you go to the reception?" asked the telegraph Wire of the Lamp Post.

"No," whence was it?"

"At the Subway's. They had quite a crowd, I heard."

"They didn't invite me. I guess they saw I couldn't get down."—Puck.

The Worst Yet.

Mrs. Gazzam—The czar's cook has been hected putting poison in the monarch's tea.

Gazzam—He wanted to prepare him for czar-coffee-gus, evidently.—Judge.

A Good Samaritan.

There was a good Samaritan on a train from Newport to Bangor the other day. When he got on the car a double seat there was occupied by a tired woman and four hot, tired, dirty, squabbling children. Did the newcomer, after a short remark about the nuisance of children traveling, put his feet on the seat in front and bury himself in a newspaper? Not he. As soon as he saw the party he lighted up his pipe, put it away, tucked his baggage in the small est possible quantity, and squeezed the third and dirty bit of humanity over to his side of the car, getting some one just ahead of him, to give up a seat, so as to accommodate all four of them. Soon he had the quartet eating wafers and laughing at his stories while the tired mother got a nap.—Fairfield (Me.) Journal.

To Autograph Hunts.

Many are now collecting autographs, not as a year or two ago they collected postage stamps or coins or cigarette pictures. In most cases they probably have no real knowledge of the books or deeds of the writers or statesmen or scientific men whom they annoy by petitions for "their names and a favorite sentiment," but I see signs up the hobby to live of it as quickly as they have done of others.

Is it fair that they should encroach on as time of men and women, to whom time more valuable than money? Or have they the right to plead before their busy brains the philosophy of writing to them, or theorizing the idle life of a book-collector?—London Figaro.

Bleeding Hues the Most High

An eminent German has undergone the enormous labor of counting the number of hairs in heads of four different colors. In a blonde one he found 140 000, in a brown, 109 440 in a black, 102 962, and in a red one, 88 740. What the red and black heads wanted in number of hairs was made up, however, in the greater bulk of the hairs individually. It is to the fineness and multiplicity of hairs that blonde tresses owe the rich and silky like character of their floss.—New York Ledger.

Tennyson is fond of receiving visits from pretty young girls who like his poetry. While he is grumpy to older callers he is at his best when the young girls are around, and recites his poetry to them and makes himself agreeable generally.

"During the next few hours his condition grew visibly worse and every moment the dying out of the scarcely flickering spark of life was apprehended. But on the following morning the exhaustion had diminished considerably the patient improved rapidly and in a comparatively short time was completely restored to health. This accidental combination of the two remedies called to Babtchinsky's mind the doctrine to which Custani had held.

"Soon after the recovery of his child the doctor was called to the bedside of a diphtheria patient who was dangerously affected. He was treating an erysipelas case at the same time and, encouraged by the experience which he had made with his own, he decided to inoculate the poison of the erysipelas microbe into the lower jaw of his diphtheria patient. The latter recovered without the application of any other remedy. From this time forth Dr. Babtchinsky hesitated no longer to extend his practice in this direction. As he did not always have erysipelas patients on hand when he needed the poison he established an artificial breeder of erysipelas bacillaria. He succeeded in twelve more cases in saving his diphtheria patients by applying the erysipelas microbe. Only two patients died, because the inoculatory microbe was effete, perhaps. But this need not cause us to doubt the effectiveness of the new treatment for the following example will demonstrate that it is still confirmed by another case.

"Six children were stricken almost simultaneously with diphtheria in one family. Five of these were inoculated with the erysipelas bacillaria, and they recovered in a wonderfully short time. The sixth child had been at once removed to a remote part of the city and died of the dread epidemic. Strange as this method is in itself it is no less singular than the progress of the erysipelas is painless and quiet one, not accompanied by unfavorable results upon the general condition of the patient while the cure of the diphtheria is being effected.

Whether he theory that the erysipelas microbe destroys the diphtheria poison is founded upon fact, or is simply a delusion, leaving the cause of these wonderful recoveries to be sought for in other quarters we care less at the present moment for the solution of this purely scientific question, as our interest enters primarily in the result which alone is satisfactory to the layman. The close and controlling observations to which physicians will subject the new method will soon demonstrate whether Dr Babtchinsky has found the real enemy of the diphtheria microbe, and that we are rid of the which demands annual by the lives of thousands of our little ones."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Marshal Clibborn's Heroism

The beach of Winnerenx near Boulogne has been the scene of a daring rescue. One of the bathers a merchant of Boulogne lost footing and being unable to swim was carried away by the tide. He disappeared for a time but was afterward seen on the surface of the water back uppermost, and his face under water. As alarm was raised, but before the bathing master could respond to it a stranger who had witnessed the scene had thrown himself into the water and was making for the unfortunate bather. He reached him not without difficulty turned him on his back and drew him ashore. The rescued man was to all appearance dead but the stranger laid him on the sand and rubbed his chest and arms so vigorously that breathing was restored. The patient at length recovered consciousness and the next day was pronounced out of danger. His rescuer turned out to be Mr Sydney Booth Clibborn otherwise Marshal Clibborn, who was on a holiday with his wife and child.—London News.

Bowing to Jackson's Statue

Congressman Richard Vaux, the picturesque old gentleman who succeeded Samuel J Randall in the house, has one peculiar characteristic. He is a great admirer of the late Andrew Jackson, and misses no opportunity to honor his memory. Mr Vaux lives but a stone's throw from Jackson park Washington in which the equestrian statue of the rugged old Democrat stands. Every morning no matter what the state of the weather is, Mr Vaux strolls over to the park after breakfast, and, facing the statue of the man whose memory he honors, respectfully removes his hat. He has not neglected a day of love nor day since he has been a resident of Washington.—New York Journal.

A New Paint Oil.

An important discovery is reported from California in the shape of a new paint oil, which is stated to be superior to linseed oil, and also to be much cheaper. It has the further advantage that on surfaces which are exposed to the weather it makes the paint softer more than twice as long as linseed oil. It is also claimed that "for the heat and dryness of summer, nor the cold and wet of winter, will cause the paint to scale off and 'chalk.' It preserves its elasticity and gloss better and longer than linseed oil and never blisters in the sun." The colors used in the manufacture of this new paint oil is extracted from fish oil.—Lewiston Journal.

IMPROVED
PORTABLE AND BRICK SET

The Most Powerful and Durable Furnace Made.

We have improved this modern and popular furnace by putting in a mounted on ROLLERS and operated by a LEVER (which is always in place) while standing erect working so easy that a child may operate it. It is self cleaning and absolute le gas tight. All ETNA'S have Anti Clinker Grate Dust fine Sifting Grate and Double Water Pans.

LEVER WORKING DRAW CENTER GRATE,

For Simplicity, Economy, and Healthy, Pure, Warm Air, it has no equal.

I have examined this furnace and get our book of testimonials showing its great superiority over all other furnaces and get our low prices.
